

Sue,
It was really great knowing you this year. I hope we can always be great friends like we are now. Lots of luck here at Parma (and with Bill).
Hope we can get together and have loads of fun.

To Susan,
my best friend and companion. We had a lot of fun together this year. Maybe next year we'll be in some of the same classes & we can have fun.

Love,
To one of the craziest girls I've known all year. Keep up with your "hairy" personality. Good luck in every thing. And God bless!
Always,

Acknowledgment of the conclusion of a high school career for seniors, confidence in a familiar environment as juniors and anxiety in the uncertainty of sophomores typify student life at Parma High. Participation in over fifty areas of activities at PSH augments the broad area of academics taught by one hundred sixty-five faculty members. The spirit of Parma Redmen includes not only a sports team but all of Parma High. Everyone shares in strengthening our title of "Queen of High Schools."

Good luck
in all your endeavors
Mr. Vick

“A human soul without education is like marble in a quarry which shows none of its inherent beauties.”

The tediousness of study . . .

the vague surge of excitement on completing a term paper . . .

HOMECOMING

is the effort to impress on the mind
the memory of being a student.

Such a memory is like a hides in the attic.

Quickly written, it is a page quickly to be turned, rapidly yellowing.
It lies dusty and forgotten until it is stumbled across — then one remembers and smiles.

An extracurricular activity involves extra time, extra interest, extra responsibility. The band member, the actor, the cheerleader chooses to give his talent as well as his willingness.

PROPS must be assembled — costumes made — sets built — lines learned. A play production is comparable to painting a picture — many colors must blend with one another in order to become a whole.

CREATIVITY is the result of idealism. Music, art, poetry are the tangible expressions of the intangible emotions of the mind. Creativity is the soul of genius. "Creative Art demands the service of a mind and heart." — Wadsworth.

Winter Tree

Your bare arms reach out
 Reach up
 Past my bare fingers
 For something
 Both of us know not what
 But
 I could perhaps understand
 A bare reaching winter tree
 If I were to reach out
 Reach up
 With more bared
 Than just my fingers.

CAUTION: INDIVIDUAL SATISFACTION MAY BE HAZARDOUS TO YOUR POSITION IN SOCIETY

They say it's senseless, so who worry?
They say it's not worth it, so why enjoy it?
But
They don't have my tongue;
No
They don't have my mind.
Let them laugh their prophetic, pessimistic heads off.
I'll just sit back and with my hand
Dive
Into the little white paper bag
And with my fingers
Grasp hold of a treasure.
Then, slowly, lips waiting, eyes closing,
I'll recall my hand
And in a swift — but oh, so beautiful motion —
I'll bite into the candy —
Small, round, about the size of a quarter;

Left to right: Barb Eaton was awarded honorable mention for her work submitted to the Regional Scholastic Art Exposition. Sue Stepanek, Art IV student, expresses her impressions through art media. Kris Kizak, artist for Spectrum and designer of several PSH play programs, exhibited her work at the Regional Scholastic Art Exposition. The Voice of WTIP, Glenn Jambor also communicates on paper, as seen in the poem at the right. He was a nominee for the National Council of English Teacher's Composition Contest. Writing, art, athletics — the modes of expression are varied for Becky Schlemmer.

Handicapped children visited the Art Museum and orphans enjoyed tobogganing and bowling through the efforts of the four chapters of Hi-Y clubs at Parma — the Trojans, Excaliber, Journeymen, and Marquis. They also sponsored a Thanksgiving food drive, Christmas clothing drive, and ushered at school plays and the Variety Show.

A Christmas party for underprivileged children and bake sale were part of Sophomore Y-Teens events with adviser Miss Meilander. Mrs. Torgler's Junior Y-Teens served an international dinner with dishes from many lands, caroled at a hospital and took mentally retarded children on a sled ride. A collection for United Appeal was conducted by Senior Y-Teens under adviser Miss Wagy. The girls also packaged candy for the Holy Family Cancer Home.

"The Man in the Hall" voiced student opinions every Friday over WTIP, Parma's Morning Announcement Show. Presenting club news, editorials, and interviews, the staff worked with all facets of closed circuit radio and television: directing, writing scripts, announcing, and engineering. Other communications groups included the AVA and 35 mm Projectionists. AVA members distributed and operated classroom aids, while the Projectionists presented noon movies. Guided by Mr. Cowgill, the four groups gained experience while serving PSH.

Trying to top the 1966-7 record of 157 wins-67 losses, PSH's debate team travelled throughout Northeastern Ohio. The Varsity Team of G. Jambor, D. Kanai, M. Lobas, and R. Luks, carried Parma's hopes into March District Tournaments. While debates focused on criminal investigations, extemporaneous speaking and individual events covered a broad scope of subjects. The NFL chapter sponsored two debate tournaments at PSH.

Neither rain, sweat, nor blistered feet could daunt the Marching Redmen as they paraded through a season of creative half-times. Shows such as "What's Buggin' Ya" became lasting memories to the 120 of the marching team, the 24 substitutes, and the ten Parma Hi-Stepers, who saw themselves in movies after each game. Eight new altoniums and six white fiberglass sousaphones enriched the sound of performances from the heat of August rehearsal to the freeze of the Parma Christmas Parade, Dec. 3.

The Redmen fought their way to second place in the LEL with their finest season since 1960. Starting with upsets of Admiral King, St. Ignatius, and Shaw, the Redmen never really regained their opening momentum which had them top-ranked in northeast Ohio, until crushing Shaker in the season finale. A fourth-quarter comeback enabled Parma to beat arch-rival Valley Forge for the first time in five years. Two weeks later, Redmen saw their title hopes ended by LEL champ Lakewood. Mengerink, Walker, Kerr, and Platt made all-LEL. JV's 7-2 mark captured second place.

Between building a winning Homecoming float and leading exercises, Girls' Leaders Club was always busy. The girls, advised by Miss Fryar, developed skillful leadership by aiding the teachers in gym class. To raise funds, the club held car washes, bake sales and sold candy. GLC presented an apparatus exhibition and ended the year by initiating new Leaders on the Weekend at Hiram House Camp.

Parma's cheerleaders, practicing from August to February, had a longer season than any team they supported. The girls, advised by Miss Harrison and Miss Ries, promoted spirit and sportsmanship at assemblies, games and through service projects. A first for the Parma system was the clinic held in December for Parma junior and senior high cheerleaders; its success prompted the planning of a future LEL event. The cheerleaders' last duty was conducting the clinics for tryouts, where sixteen girls were chosen for next year's squad.

A perfect 3-0 softball season opened varsity competition for girls. The team took Euclid and Fairview by lopsided scores and finished the season with a 13-9 victory over Valley Forge. Pat Burserean and Roberta Svegel turned in standout pitching performances while Linda Janson was chosen Most Valuable. The varsity and JV volleyball teams, coached by Miss Fryar and Miss Harrison, concentrated on playing power or "fingertip" volleyball this year. After losing to Euclid, the girls bounced back to overrun Forge.

“Hello,

sophomores” sung by Girls Boosters to the tune of “Hello Dolly” welcomed sophs to their first assembly, Sept. 6, 1967. Briefed on privileges and restrictions, and guided by schedules and student handbooks, sophs realized their new responsibilities as Parma Redmen.

Chaos described the first few months at PSH for incoming sophomores. Despite this obstacle, class officers wasted no time in making plans for the Class of '70. Dues, the soph dance, and the Christmas window, were only a few of the problems tackled by the newly-elected cabinet.

"Hey, sophs, are you with us?" was answered with a resounding "YES" at Parma games. Until this year, sophs had to be content with cheering for an older brother or sister's team. Now the Redmen on the field or court finally belonged to them. Realizing the responsibilities of the team's support, 10th graders acquired the school spirit necessary to fulfill the inheritance of the team.

Split loyalty and lost traditions troubled underclassmen who will attend the third high school. The thought of losing long-time friends was compounded by the realization that they would be cheering against each other at games. This was offset for many by the anticipation of modern rooms, special vocational curriculum, and shortened traveling time to school.

Humanities

designed to develop students' knowledge and understanding of their feelings, ideas, and opinions, was offered to non-college bound sophomores. The race situation, community planning, and other current problems were often the topics of class discussions. The curriculum was augmented by movies such as David and Lisa and A Raisin in the Sun, field trips, and concerts.

Drama

entered the classroom as staged news events provided sophomores in journalism classes with an opportunity to develop reporting skills. Personal involvement in lesson dramatizations increased sophs' enthusiasm for their language classes. The routine of English grammar and Latin translations was broken as students participated in their learning experiences.

Cyprus schools

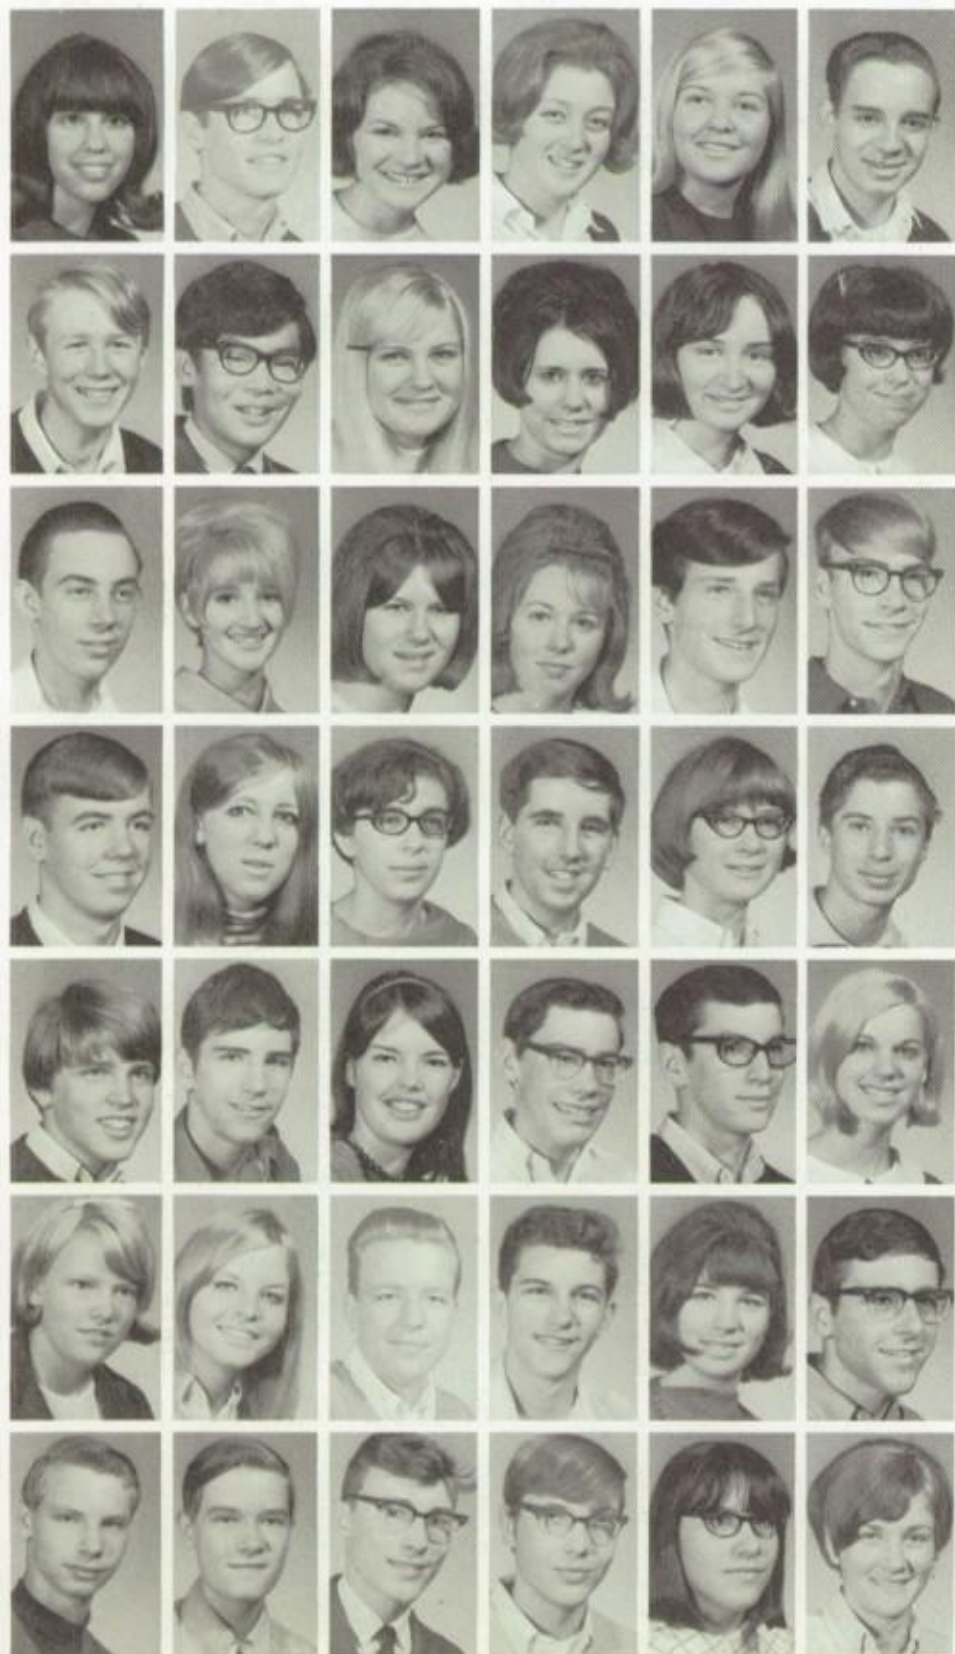

provide a truer

evaluation of student work through a ten-point grading system, said exchange student Sezin Cemdl to US hostess Marsha Darland. Other educational differences included a shorter school day with teachers, rather than students, changing classes.

Pride in a school is shown in the wearing of the class ring. In the junior year students browsed through more than a hundred ring styles to choose the special symbol of their upperclassmanship.

Junior officers provided leadership for their class by organizing activities and projects. They initiated the Junior Class Party which replaced the Junior Dance and planned the traditional Christmas window.

Eyes

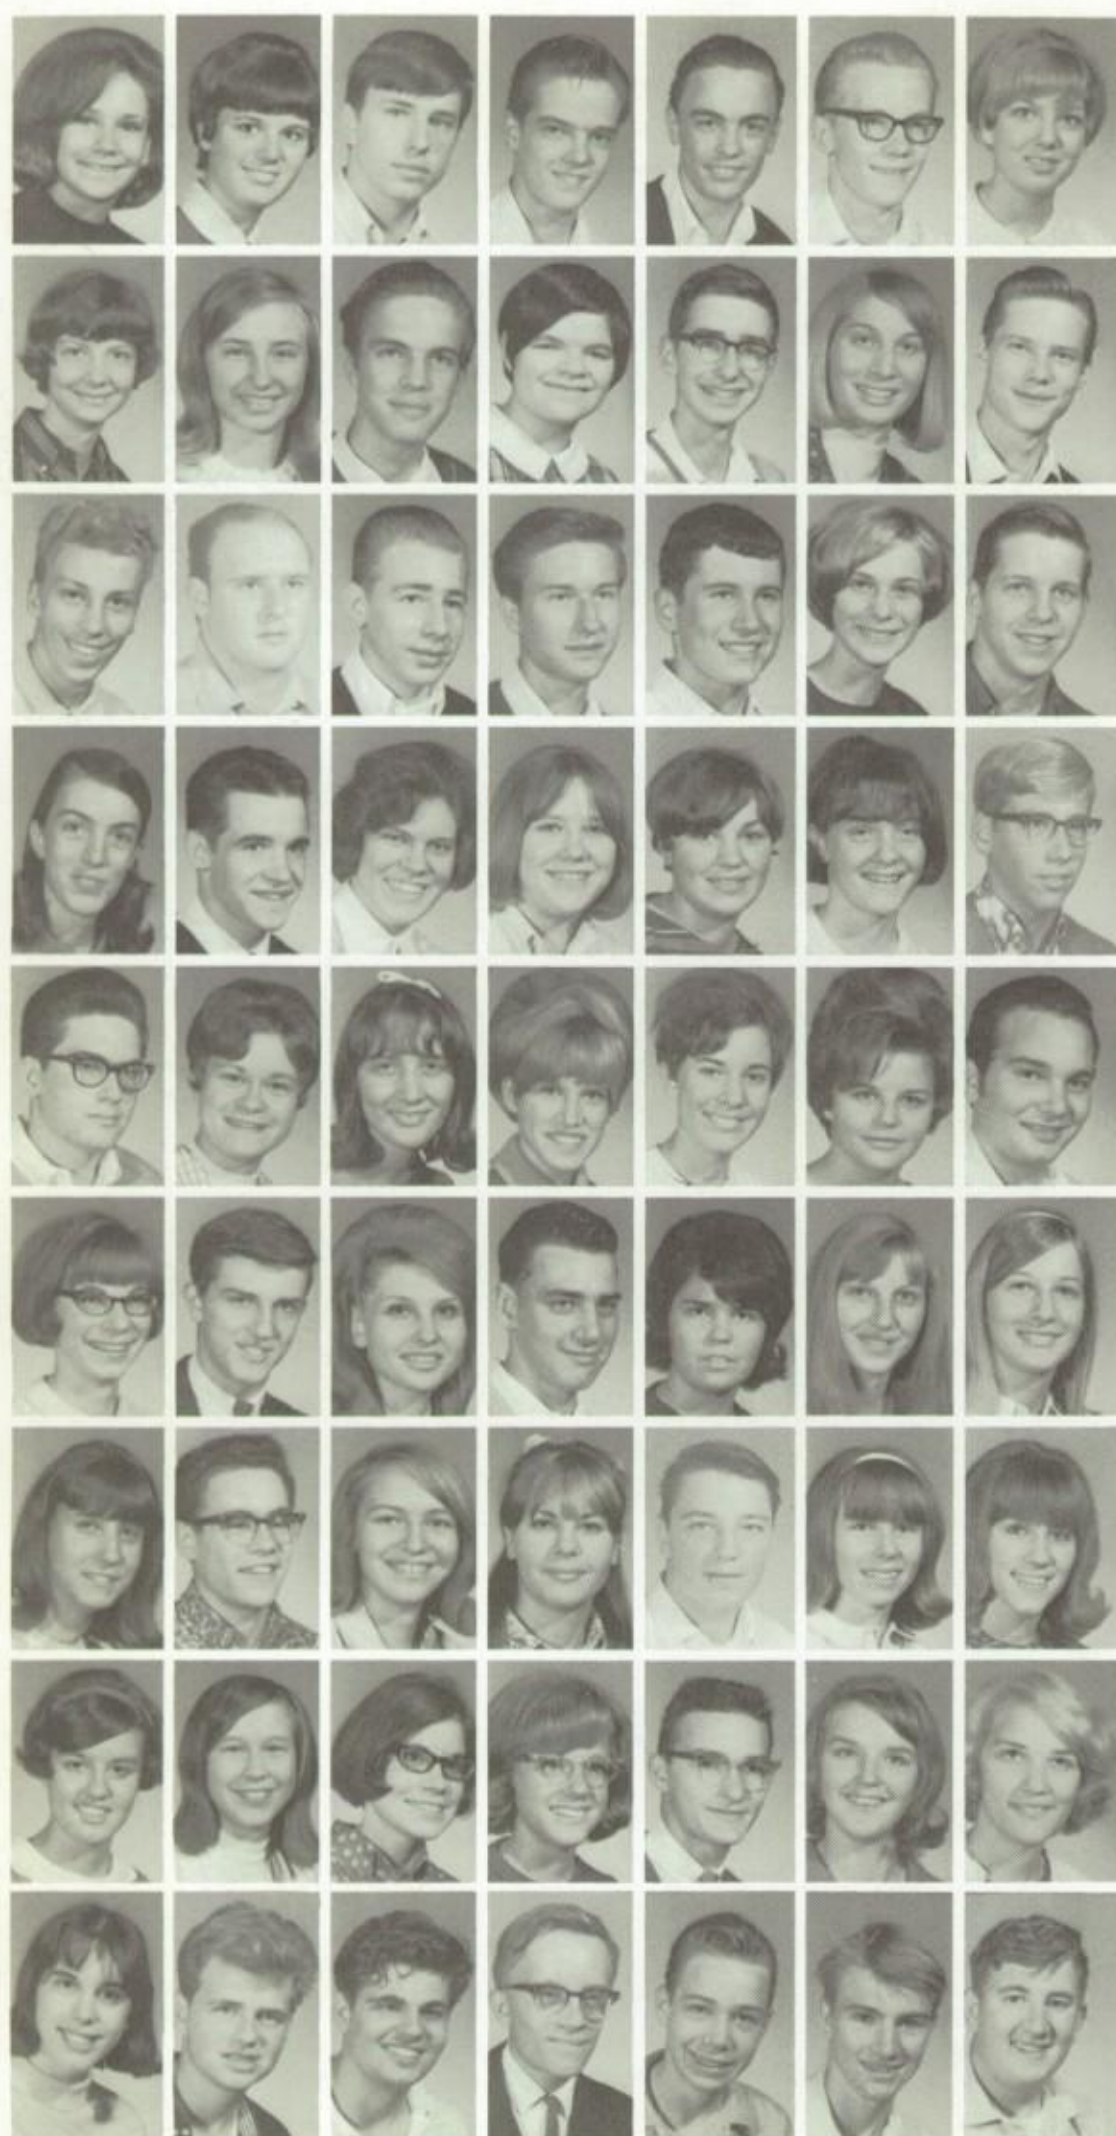

ears, noses, hands — a combination essential for classes which prepared students for the future. Eyes that saw copy that was set in Vocational Printing, ears that heard the cookie timer ring, noses that smelled burning fabric from a hot iron, hands that assembled parts of a car in transportation — these four, coordinated by the mind that recorded the information, trained students.

4:10 closed an eight-hour school day and opened an evening of outside activities. Club meetings, Junior Class projects, and dance committees often left chemical formulas and The Scarlet Letter for late hours. On June 12, 4:10 gained new significance as a school year ended and the Class of '69 finally became seniors.

filled the auditorium homeroom of 944 members of the Class of '68. From 10:00 to 10:10 WTIP announcements could not rival the pandemonium resulting from the payment of dues, distribution of Chieftains, voting and idle chatter. A pause came only on Tuesdays and Thursdays when class adviser, Mr. Hicks, announced graduation details to seniors.

Senior energy and money were channeled by the class officers. Dues they collected helped lower Prom costs and financed the Senior Class Dance. In addition to compiling the ballot from which were chosen the representative class song, flower, motto, and colors, these officers constructed the Christmas display and decorated for the Senior Dance.

Strings

of cranberries and popcorn, snow on the windows and doors, all added to the festivity of the Senior AP parties. In honor of old English traditions, students drank glasses of mead to toast the Christmas season. Unusual tree ornaments, such as Grendel's claw and Romeo and Juliet cutouts, reminded seniors even in the holiday season, of lessons, past and present.

PSH's image was projected to the community by those who were generous with their leisure time. As candy-stripers and recreation leaders, senior girls found an outlet for volunteer spirit. Church clubs, student government leagues, scouting and discussion groups interested boys. Good public relations were created when citizens viewed seniors working to help others.

Elected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and sportsmanship, the seniors were praised by Cleveland Browns' Ross Fichtner, featured speaker. Spanish tragedy Frederico Garcia Lorca's "Blood Wedding," presented by an all-Thespian cast, described the inevitable tragic ending to a marriage formed without love in the midst of a family feud. Aimed at mature students seriously interested in theater, the play combined believable characters with symbolic abstractions.

Above: "Blood Wedding" develops the surrealistic quality in Nancy Huntington's portrayal of death. Center: The union, through marriage, of two feuding families brings much debate between a cautious mother, Donna Bryk, and her overanxious son, Mike Oleksa. Far right: Ed Guinto, covered with silver body paint, illuminates the stage for the final declaration of love between Barb Brown and Rick Szekelyi.

They say death is a subtle stranger to no one. But I really don't have too much time to worry about such things. My mind is preoccupied; we only have five minutes between periods and with the crowded conditions, well, you know how it is.

They say death is a subtle stranger to no one, but right after school I have to rush and catch my bus so I'm not left behind — there are so many kids running around the bus loop that you feel sort of lost. Well, you know how it is.

And when I get home, I don't have time to think about that subtle stranger, between homework and television and the phone. But you know how it is.

Death is a subtle stranger to no one. But once you become acquainted with him, everything else seems so trivial . . . you know how it is.

Wheel of fortune, an old-fashioned ice cream parlor, discotheque, and a pie-eating contest attracted more than 2,000 students to the annual All-School Party, March 2. Reversing the past process of sharing profits with Student Council, clubs kept all money earned in booths and shared in gate receipts.

opportunities for high school credit.

Three work-study programs link the school with the business community. Left: A participant in Distributive Education, Dick Huber finds time to work as a Higbee's stockboy. Above left: As a result of industrial arts training, Frank Szerpicki begins a career as a machinist. Above right: Mel Schnoke, through Occupational Work Experience, sells and repairs machinery at Parma Hardware. Boss Red Derensky checks a parts catalog. Top: Cooperative Office Ed. provides opportunities for Bonnie Crail, taking inventory with Frank Davis at Sundorf Aeronautics. Other COE students spend mornings in the classroom and afternoons as secretaries and clerks.

Extending an education, embarking on a career, or meeting an obligation, the graduate entering the armed forces serves himself and his country.

Below: Military obligations are explained by officers to participants of Career night. Bottom right: PSH alumnus Gary Prehauser gives vivid picture of Navy life in San Diego to Fred Bourjaily and Larry Noble. Bottom left: The "Big P" slowly loses dominance when a draft card is added to the credentials. Right: A farewell kiss from sister sends former PSH student Pvt. Andrew Zupko back to 101st airborne.

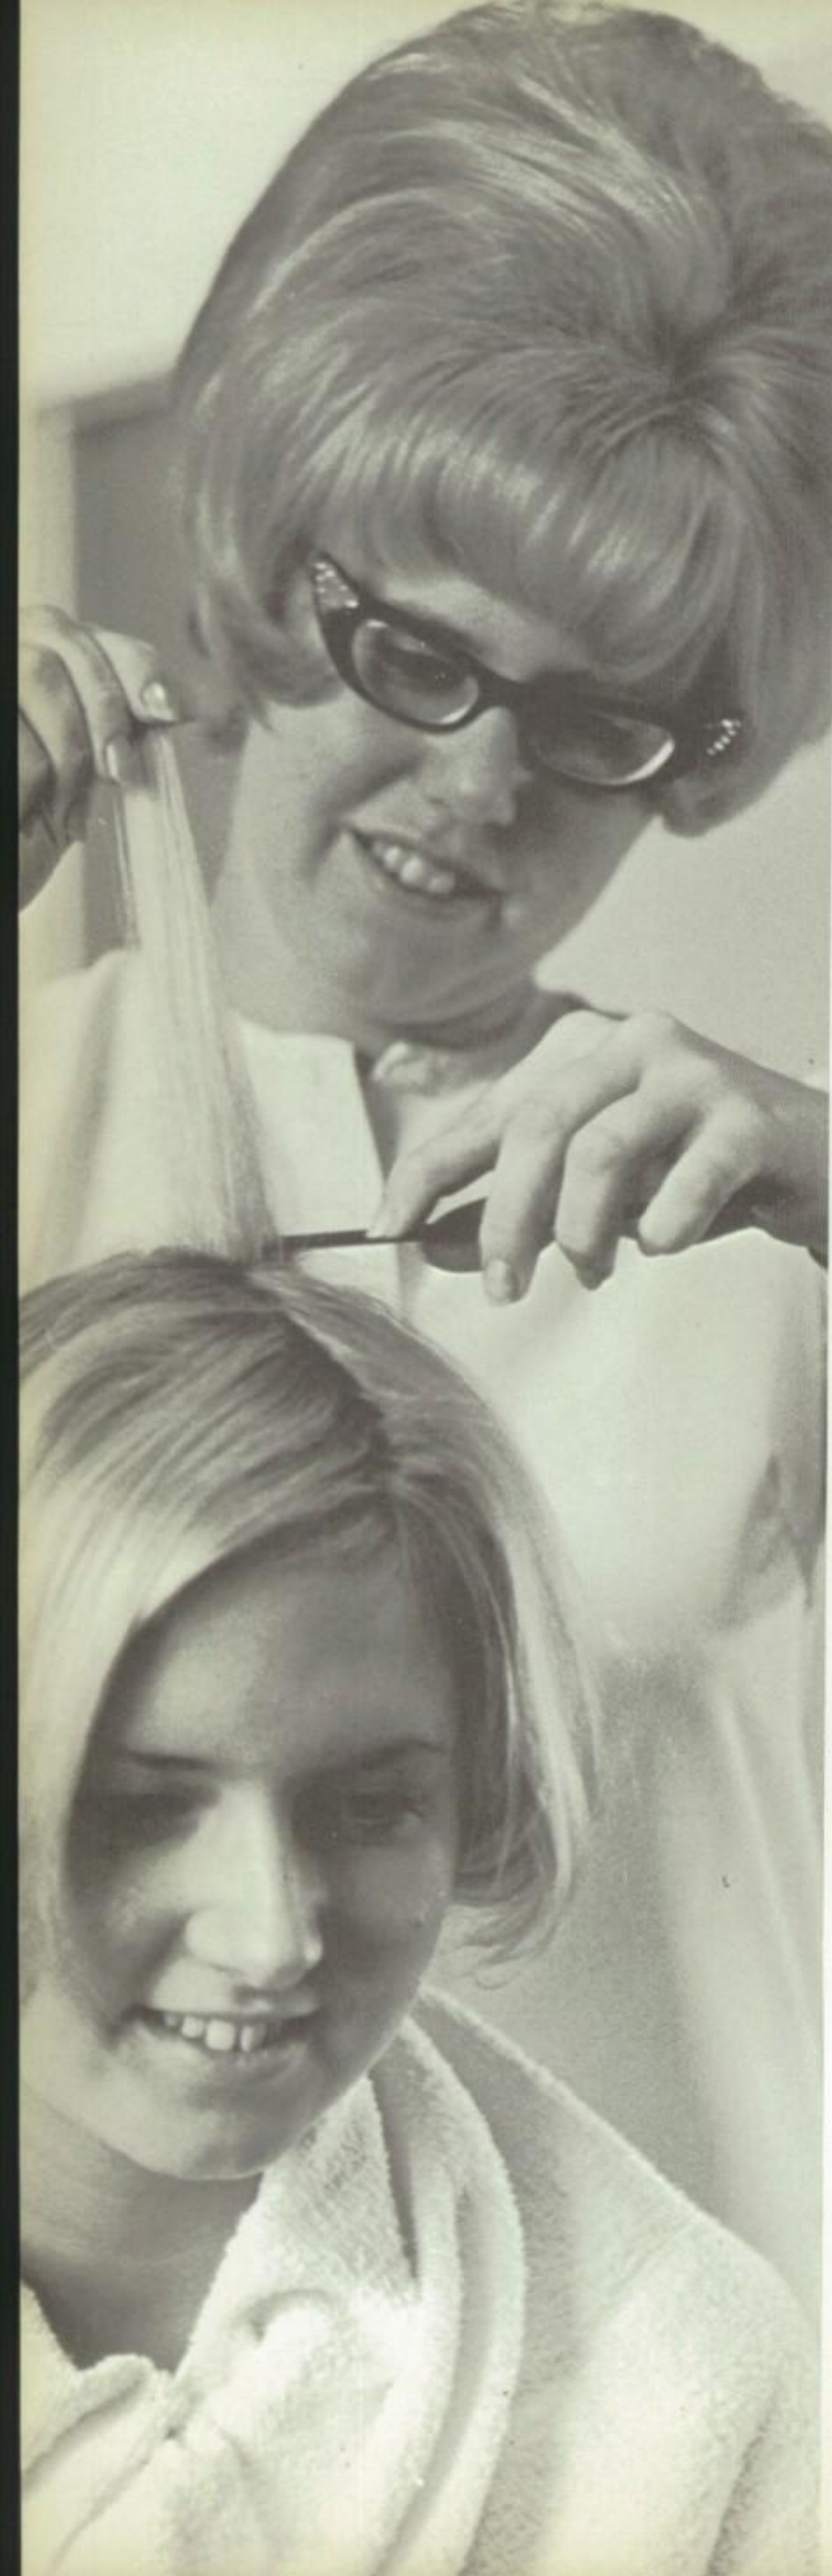

Top: The PSAT test, a measure of one's possible success in college, is only the beginning for Bert Brenner and other college-bound students. Above: A tour of campuses is on the agenda for many seniors as Stef Varatto views Community College. Right: Kent State, a popular college choice, is discussed by Cynthia Hoursatt and Joe Yurth, with guidance from KSU freshman Phil Jung. Far right: Interviews with counselors on procedures of college admission become essential, Sharon Listkowski realizes.

An extended education in a specific field is a course taken by many.
Becoming skilled in their own chosen area is their goal.

Meeting the challenge of an outside business world are many students who find employment while completing school. Experience and salary provide ample reason for added responsibility.

Top: Sue Sheffer is one of many Parma students Mrs. Sagert aids in making the first step to employment — the work permit. Above: A moment familiar to many Parma students. Left: Although planning a career in elementary education, Linda Noga pursues styling interest with customer Beth Miller in the part-time occupation of a beautician. Right: The underside of a car becomes a routine sight to mechanic Jerry Marfizo, as he gains satisfaction in doing what he enjoys well. Far right: Everyone needs some type of outside outlook on life.

THE transition from the security of an established way of life, to the uncertain, yet-to-be-established future must be faced by every high school graduate.

Home and school slowly lose dominance

as opportunities, long awaited,

now

slowly

approach.
